

Leveraging Behavioral Economics in Employee Benefit Programs

Thursday, March 21, 2019

(Rescheduled from February 21, 2019)

The Capital Chapter ISCEBS invites you to join us for this engaging program on using Behavioral Economics to improve ROI and increase employee satisfaction with employee benefit programs. Drawing on fascinating scientific research, client examples and real-life demonstrations, our speaker will share practical examples of how to nudge employees to save more for retirement, adopt healthier lifestyles and make better decisions regarding their employee benefit options. Gain valuable insights for honing your benefits strategy, improving employee communications and helping employees optimize your benefit offerings.
